What They're Saying

AD

" AB, Maylyn, and Antonio continue to be so friendly and helpful! Every interaction I have with them is positive, whether it's going out of their way to help me carry a large package without my asking, to the fantastic monthly events, to just a simple hello. I'm so grateful that we've always had such great people keeping the place running!!"

Local Feature

Bellevue Farmers Market

The wait is finally over—the Bellevue Farmers Market is back for its 23rd season! Spring in the Northwest might bring a mix of sun and rain, but the market opens rain or shine on May 21st at 3:00 PM. Living at Stokely, you are just a quick trip away from the opening day festivities, which kick off with an official ribbon cutting and live music by the Haggis Brothers.

This season's early lineup is packed with the best local offerings:

Fresh Harvests: Pick up seasonal greens, vibrant flowers, and fresh mushrooms.

Market Staples: Stock your pantry at Stokely with artisanal bread, local cheeses, and specialty staples.

Spring Planting: Grab a plant to brighten your space.

Artisan Goods: Shop a curated selection of handmade products from local ranchers and makers.

Come experience a lively May afternoon supporting the incredible farmers and artisans who make our community so special.

Live Well

Mental Health Awareness Month

Protect Your Peace

May is Mental Health Awareness Month, a perfect time to slow down and prioritize your well-being. Living in the heart of Bellevue offers so many ways to recharge, and we want to help you make the most of them. Here are a few "Protect Your Peace" tips to practice this month:

Unplug to Reconnect: Take a break from the digital noise and head to Meydenbauer Bay Park for a sunset walk. Sometimes the best way to reset is to simply leave the phone behind.

Create a Sanctuary: Use this month to refresh your space at Stokely. Whether it's adding a new plant or dedicating "quiet time" in your favorite corner, your home should be your ultimate retreat.

Practice Mindfulness Outdoors: Find a quiet spot in Bellevue Downtown Park for ten minutes of mindful breathing. Grounding yourself in nature is one of the quickest ways to lower stress.

Remember, taking care of your mind is just as important as taking care of your home. Let's make this a month of balance, connection, and true self-care.
